

Grand Jury Report.

This return is an important document, conveying, however, the astonishing information that nobody concerned in the Burns murder could be identified. From newspaper accounts of the affair there were more witnesses than participants in the killing, yet nobody knows of anybody in the killing crowd.

Some radical amendment of the liquor-license law is suggested, and other healthy recommendations made.